Dear Mr President:

I am concerned about infrastructure and election security. Russian hackers have reportedly gained significant control of US elections and US power plants. Ukrainian power grids were attacked in December of 2015 and 2016 making the threat clear and the election threats and aid to the Republican campaign were found by the FBI at least as early. Apparently neither threat was taken seriously. There were power grid attacks reported this week and the only serious investigation into election meddling by Special Counsel Mueller has been harried by your administration and Representative Nunes of the house intelligence committee. I am pleased to see that there are finally sanctions being levied but the fact that they are exactly the people indicted by Mueller's office suggests no other investigation is going on.

Please assure me that you will investigate Russian hacking.

I am very proud to be a US citizen and a large part of that derives from our independence.

Sincerely,
Eric Babson
