Dear Mr President:

I am concerned about lending discrimination. The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau is tasked with promoting fairness and in its seven years has substantially curtailed abusive lending and collection, generating billions of dollars of refunds to millions of people. Since the acting directorship was seized from Ms English no enforcement actions have been initiated and the agency has been gutted. The fair lending office there is now headed by Mr Blankenstein who has initiated no anti-discrimination lawsuits and despite this lack of work and minimal experience has been given the highest possible salary with Acting Director Mulvaney's only explanation being that nobody could stop him. Recently it has come to light that Mr Blankenstein also ran a blog under a pseudonym where he spouted racist attacks on anti-discrimination efforts in general. This has of course created an uproar at the agency.

Please assure me that you will fire Mssrs Blankenstein and Mulvaney.

I am very proud to be a US resident and a large part of that derives from our equitable society.

Sincerely,
Eric Babson
