Read, Reflect, and React (or Respond) Prompt #7

Now that you have just taken the first midterm, it is time to sit back and reflect (regardless whether or not you know your score). Even though it's not good to dwell on the past, it's important to use our past experiences to prepare for the future, namely the second midterm. I have always considered the first midterm as a practice test to determine how the professor makes the test, along with other things, and I would always update my test preparation scheme accordingly. With this in mind, please respond to the following:

1. On a scale of 1-100, guess what your first midterm score is?

2. Using what you know about the first test and assuming that you received the score that you guessed, is there any changes that you would make in your test preparation scheme? Why or why not?
