Dear Mr President:

I am very concerned by knownothing environmental policies. This week the EPA removed many of the scientists on their review board. This follows removal of EPA web sites discussing the science of global warming and coincides with a sweeping interior department review of its boards. The disingenuous assertion by an Interior Department spokesman that these removals were in the interest of competitiveness along with the assertion that industry rather than academic representatives were expected to be considered for these boards only increases suspicion that your administration is attempting to eliminate anyone knowledgeable about the science from most environmental decisions.

Please assure me that you will seek competent advice on environmental questions.

I am very proud to be a US resident and a large part of that derives from our rational governmental policies.

Sincerely,
Eric Babson
