Dear Mr. Attorney General:

I am very concerned by private college fraud. This country has the best private colleges in the world. It also has a number of truly terrible ones. The past twenty years has seen a growth of private institutions preying on students. Poorer children of people without college degrees have been particularly affected. This has greatly expanded the debt crisis for young adults and serves as a barrier to social mobility. Today Secretary DeVos moved to block the minimal regulation that was about to take effect. Besides being immoral and likely illegal this action presents a conflict of interest around the President's ownership of such an institution. Your office has been at the forefront in holding these predators to account. I am pleased to see that you are continuing the tradition by joining today's suit challenging the Education Department's action.

I am very proud to be a US resident and a large part of that derives from our remarkable education system.

Sincerely,
Eric Babson
