Dear Mr President:

I am concerned about corruption. US trade policy with China affects much of the worlds population but your actions appear to be motivated only by the concerns of your immediate family. You and your daughter's continued conflicts as high officials in the US government and owners actively administering international companies make you particularly obvious targets for bribery. This week's trademark deals - the latest in a string, all suspiciously timed - emphasize that the Chinese government has taken note. Once again these possibly lucrative decisions have come on the eve of negotiations suggesting that past bribes - reversing your own rejections and approving two other batches for your daughter - have proven effective. As the House changes hands and an emoluments law suit proceeds it might be prudent to at least try to hide your corruption.

Please assure me that you will stop taking bribes.

I am very proud to be a US resident and a large part of that derives from our honest government.

Sincerely,
Eric Babson
