Dear Mr President:

I am concerned about duplicity. You appear to be shockingly credulous for a person your age. In case after case you claim to be persuaded by the sheer emphasis used in a denial, though a prior connection to you appears to help also. You have cited your extreme credulity to ignore intelligence agencies in connection with Putin and Russian election interference and today in connection with Crown Prince Mohammad bin Salman and the murder of Mr Khashoggi. You have often cited this credulity to ignore women with your support for Roy Moore, Rob Porter and Judge Kavanaugh after each issued a nice strong denial. This complete failure to even pretend to seek the truth rather than your favored alternatives is continuing to damage faith in the US government. Fortunately there will soon be House committees reminding you of the importance of the truth.

Please assure me that you will start to demand evidence.

I am very proud to be a US resident and a large part of that derives from our rational policies.

Sincerely,
Eric Babson
