Dear Senator Feinstein:

I am concerned about impulsive governance. This week the decision whether to start a war reportedly came down not to the considered opinion of a majority of Congress but to the waffling judgment of a buffoon buffeted back and forth by unelected advisors. Also this week a vicious act of law enforcement theater was abruptly announced apparently as a rally prop and then the immigration round up was just as abruptly postponed. The haste (short attention span?), waffling and lack of planning are similar to the disastrous Muslim ban and family separation policy. I am pleased to see Congress moving to assert control over foreign and immigration policy with safeguards in the emergency DHS funding bills, moves against Saudi arms sales and lawsuits around wall funding but this week's terrifying threats highlight an immediate need for more direct congressional oversight.

Please assure me that you will stop this impulsive president.

I am very proud to be a US resident and a large part of that derives from our rational government.

Sincerely,
Eric Babson
