Dear Mr President:

I am concerned about climate suicide. Why you are working to make future generation miserable is unclear but maybe admitting error is simply too difficult for you. Whatever the reason the cheery stories told around your election that Obama's leadership had already put the world on the right track diplomatically with the Paris accords and economically with investments lowering the cost of renewable energy were wrong. New models keep showing that we are worse off than imagined with the melting of the tundra becoming clear this week. Recent reports find emissions accelerating. Investment in renewable energy has dropped. Yesterday the Madrid climate meeting ended two days late with your attempts to subvert them having succeeded and no diplomatic path in sight.

Please assure me that you will focus on reducing climate change.

I am very proud to be a US resident and a large part of that derives from our global leadership.

*Sincerely,
Eric Babson*
